Being the only platform for the exchange of experiences dedicated specifically to the downstream sector, the event focuses on technical and strategic maintenance issues as well as on the role of health, safety and environment (HSE) at a company level.

In its presentation “Best practice oriented, interactive optimization of maintenance activities between production and maintenance” ConMoto uses a case study to point out future-oriented risk and reliability based maintenance strategies and systematic approaches in the area of people involvement and implementation. Furthermore the lecture provides food for thought for an optimal budget and resources management as well as for the reduction of maintenance costs together with a simultaneous increase of the Overall Equipment Effectiveness. “As part of our superior Lean philosophy we understand Value Oriented Maintenance as a strategic factor for success” says Nils Blechschmidt, Senior Partner with the ConMoto Consulting Group. “The latest ConMoto study ‘Value Oriented Maintenance – The strategic dimension of the spanner’, which we are going to publish in the 1st quarter of 2011, shows, that numerous enterprises are still far away from Maintenance Excellence these days. Hence there is a need for action to be taken.”

The issue of maintenance within the Middle East downstream sector has been a constant area of focus for the region’s oil, gas, refining, petrochemical and fertilizer operators and forms the backbone of today’s successfully operating machineries and plants there. Through the sponsoring of the summit ConMoto aspires to support and coach these companies with expertise and methodological competence on their way to Maintenance Excellence.
